Time is counting down to your reunion . Are you getting excited yet? I am.

Like the saying "The goal is set in concrete however the plans are in sand". This is the case with this reunion. The Reunion is definitely happening so long as sufficient register. It is pleasing to see the numbers growing, so don't be one that regrets it afterwards when they hear how good it was. It has been suggested to me that this may be your last one.

We have however made a few changes to the format. The registration form will be updated.

Registration will now be from 2pm on the Friday which will give you time afterwards to go to your accommodation and check in and then come back for the evening festivities.

Saturdays bus trip is going to one you will remember so do book for this. I can add you to the list at this point if you have already registered and have not selected the bus trip. Send me a message.

Saturday night has a dress code change in that it will now be No1's with Miniature medals and ladies semi formal please. The evening will be more formal, with some very interesting guests invited. I have also secured a very nice Port, one I am sure you will like. I have bought a bottle already for me and it is very, very, moorish.

For Sundays Service, Smart casual - full medals to be worn. Our timing for this service is due to it being combined with the Waitara RSA commemoration service for both Vietnam and VJ days.

It has been mentioned to me that some may just turn up on the Friday or Saturday and expect to take part in the Reunion. Sorry this will not happen as numbers have to be supplied for catering. in.
